An electrifying new production for 2017

In October 2017 Motionhouse will unveil its extraordinary new production Charge, taking its inspiration from energy – human, bio medical, solar, elemental and atmospheric.

Charge will use the company's trademark fusion of dance, physical theatre, circus, digital imagery and extraordinary set design. Breath-taking choreography, film projection and LED costumes will bring to life cell division and organic composition, weather patterns, energy storage and humans as energy manipulators.

The project will be a unique collaboration between performing and digital artists and scientists. It will combine the latest research with pioneering set design and film projections to create a world ranging in scale from the planetary to the microscopic.

Motionhouse is working with partners from Oxford University to support the creative and choreographic process and create a stunning production that puts science at the heart of artistic practice.

Charge will tour extensively in the UK from October 2017, with all dates on the first leg of the tour already booked.
